Professor Barry O'Reilly, M.D.

Consultant in Obstetrics and Gynaecology, sub specialist in Urogynaecology at CUMH, Cork Ireland. He is currently Clinical Professor in Ob/Gyn at University College Dublin and Professor and Director of the ASSERT centre at University College Cork. He graduated from RCSI in 1991 and later moved to London to commence specialist registrar training based in Guy's and St. Thomas' hospitals. He was awarded a research fellowship to study ATP receptors in overactive bladder which lead to the award of MD in 2000. On completion of speciality training, he moved to Melbourne, Australia to undertake subspecialty training in Urogynaecology and Pelvic Floor Reconstructive Surgery.

Professor Bruno Deval, M.D.

is a French Gynecologist and a postgraduate-trained Surgeon with a real interest in surgical technologies and techniques. He co-chairs the SIG in Laparoscopy of the International Urogynecologic Association (IUGA). Well-known for innovative work in gynecologic surgery, he found interest in reconstructive pelvic surgery while networking at professional meetings within their large following of colleagues nationally and worldwide. Dr. DEVAL has published less than one hundred scientific articles (PubMed) and delivered presentations and live-surgery cases on Reconstructive Pelvic Surgery throughout Europe, North-Africa, South America and Asia.
